

January 17, 2007

Written by Kate Mansfield (kmansfield@costar.com)

New CRE Advisory Firm Forms in Dallas

Site Selection Group LLC Founded by Former Trammell Crow Brokers

Former Trammell Crow Co. principal King White announced the formation of Site Selection Group LLC, a new full-service advisory firm based in downtown Dallas.

Site Selection Group's services include strategic planning, economic incentive and brokerage services, portfolio administration, construction management and economic development consulting for corporations and communities. The company is also currently working to build a comprehensive site selection database.

The group is focusing on office and industrial projects, including call centers, corporate headquarters, R&D, and distribution and manufacturing operations.

White was with Trammell Crow for 10 years and was the founding member of the firm's corporate site selection and call center site selection groups.

Sam Pruitt, Brett Bayduss and David Witcher, all formerly with Trammell Crow's corporate site selection group, will join White at Site Selection Group. The team has worked with major companies such as Alltel, Amazon.com, Sprint and The Home Depot, in more than 500 corporate site selection assignments.