

DALLAS REAL ESTATE EXPERTS LAUNCH SITE SELECTION GROUP

Leading Brokerage Team from Trammell Crow Forms New Company

DALLAS, Jan. 12, 2007 – King R. White, former principal and top producing broker of Trammell Crow Company's Corporate Site Selection Group, has spun-off the division to form Dallas-based Site Selection Group LLC, a global location advisory company.

Site Selection Group – a full-service, location advisory firm – delivers comprehensive global site selection services for office and industrial projects, such as call centers, back-office, business processing functions, headquarters, R&D, distribution centers and manufacturing operations.

“We saw a unique opportunity to capitalize and expand on this highly specialized area of expertise,” said White, founder and president of Site Selection Group. “The success of Site Selection Group will be driven by establishing us as the industry leader through our intellectual capital and ability to offer comprehensive site selection services to our customers.”

Before starting the firm, King White, spent 10 years with Trammell Crow Company as the founding member of both the Corporate Site Selection and Call Center Site Selection Groups. White has been quoted by numerous global publications, including CFO Magazine and The Wall Street Journal, for his industry expertise.

In addition to White, Site Selection Group's leadership team includes Sam Pruitt, Brett Bayduss and David Witcher, all also formerly with Trammell Crow's Corporate Site Selection Group. This team has completed more than 500 corporate site selection projects, involving more than 100,000 employees, for major companies, including Alltel, Amazon.com, American Express, Harley-Davidson, Sprint and The Home Depot.

Site Selection Group's services include strategic planning, site selection consulting, economic incentive services, brokerage services, portfolio administration, construction management and economic development consulting for corporations and communities around the world.

The firm delivers value to corporate customers by maximizing the efficiencies of the labor, economic incentive, logistic and real estate conditions of their operations. Similarly, Site Selection Group consults economic development agencies on methodologies to increase the economic growth of their communities.

To provide optimal solutions for customers, Site Selection Group is building one of the most comprehensive, global site selection databases in the industry. Additionally, the company is entering into formal alliances, partnerships, and/or partial ownership with real estate and site selection firms across the world to deliver seamless, full-service solutions to any geographic region.

Site Selection Group is located at 1700 Pacific Ave., Suite 2200, Dallas, Texas, 75201, (214) 271-0582. For more information, please visit www.siteselectiongroup.com.
